2023 DESIGN AWARDS

Guidelines

Categories

Residential Single Family Detached

Outstanding residential projects are recognized which demonstrate the best in home design and combine beauty, safety, sustainability, and comfort. Projects are considered for award in TWO specific size subcategories (entrant shall select the relevant subcategory for submission):

- Smaller Homes Well-designed homes that do not exceed 2,500 square feet of living space.
- Larger Homes Well-designed homes that are over 2,500 square feet of living space that balance architectural expression, owner requirements, and sustainability.

Multi Family, Multiple Dwellings

Exemplary multifamily housing design projects (i.e., more than two units of housing in a structure) are showcased in this category. Applicable projects include both high- and low-density housing for either public or private clients, affordable housing projects, senior housing, and/or mixed-use projects that include multifamily housing.

Commercial/Industrial

The best of new or renovated commercial and industrial architectural design are celebrated in this category. Any non-residential, non-institutional building with a commercial or industrial primary purpose, including mixed use, can be submitted here. Projects are considered for award in two specific size subcategories (entrant shall select the relevant subcategory for submission):

- Small Projects Exemplary commercial / industrial projects that are less than 5,000 square feet of usable or rentable space.
- Large Projects Exceptional commercial / industrial projects that are greater than 5,000 square feet of usable or rentable space.

Institutional

Recognized projects in this category are of any size and represent state-of-the-art facilities and thought leadership in design. Institutional buildings include schools, hospitals, higher education buildings, government facilities, libraries, churches, and similar structures for institutions that serve the public good.

Urban Planning and Design

Recognizing that buildings are rarely isolated from their context and that good results come from collaborative efforts this category showcases the best in urban design, regional and city planning, and community development. Projects may be of any size but submissions should illustrate the context as well as the design solution and the anticipated impact.

2023 DESIGN AWARDS

Guidelines

Adaptive Reuse/Historic Preservation

Existing buildings that are thoughtfully renovated to be brought back to life with a new use or properly restored to preserve their heritage are the focus of this category. Any building type is eligible, but it must be clear in the submission if this is a new use for the building or if it is a historic preservation undertaking.

Interiors

Beautifully designed interior spaces are celebrated in this category showing the innovative and spectacular possibilities of interior architecture in all building types.

Unbuilt Projects

This category acknowledges that some excellent architectural work can be commissioned or completed, but through no fault of the architect, it has not yet been, or may never be built. Practicing emerging architects licensed 10 years or less, are eligible to submit any commissioned architectural work that is not yet built. All other architects are eligible to submit complete commissioned architectural design work that is not yet built or completed. The work may be of any building type.

International Projects

AIANYS member architects design notable projects all around the world and this category is meant to recognize some of their best work in locations outside of the United States of America. Any building type or project size is eligible for consideration.

Pro Bono Projects

Architects are known for service to society and many volunteer a significant amount of their time to help non-profit organizations achieve their goals. Projects of any type undertaken in this category for which the licensed architect(s) involved received no financial compensation are eligible for entry with the best ones selected for recognition and award.

Small Firms Design Award

A lot of excellent architectural work is produced by sole practitioners and firms with 10 or less architects employed by the firm. This award is an opportunity for any such New York State firm to submit one or more exemplary projects that are fairly judged against the work of comparable sized firms. Any building type or size is eligible for submission in this category.

Note: The entrant must specify one category for each submission at the time the project is uploaded. If entrant wishes to submit the same project in multiple categories, you will need to purchase additional entries.
